

OHSU CENTER FOR REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH EQUITY

With the devastating loss of federal protections over abortion care, basic health care services have become unsafe and inaccessible to individuals in more than a dozen states, disproportionately affecting low-income people and already marginalized communities. OHSU's stance is unequivocal: abortion care is health care.

In response, OHSU launched a new Center for Reproductive Health Equity to advance reproductive health services, education and policy research, and established the Abortion Care & Training (ACT) Fund to quickly mobilize resources to:

- Expand clinical services within OHSU and meet the patient need
- Train more clinicians to provide abortion care, especially those practicing in states that have banned or restricted this training
- Generate research data that guides the development of evidence-based public policy

Donors heard the call and responded in significant ways, giving more than $1.3 million in the past year to support reproductive health care initiatives at OHSU. We are grateful for the outpouring of support and are proud to share the following update one year later:

Impact and Achievements

Education

(2022-23 academic year)

(2023-24 academic year)

Partnered with ECHO Network to launch the first reproductive health rural training course and trained 42 providers across the state

Research

New Center for Reproductive Health Equity

to focus on investigating key disparities affecting reproductive health and clinical care

Care

Launched new pilot telehealth program in August

in response to a

137% increase

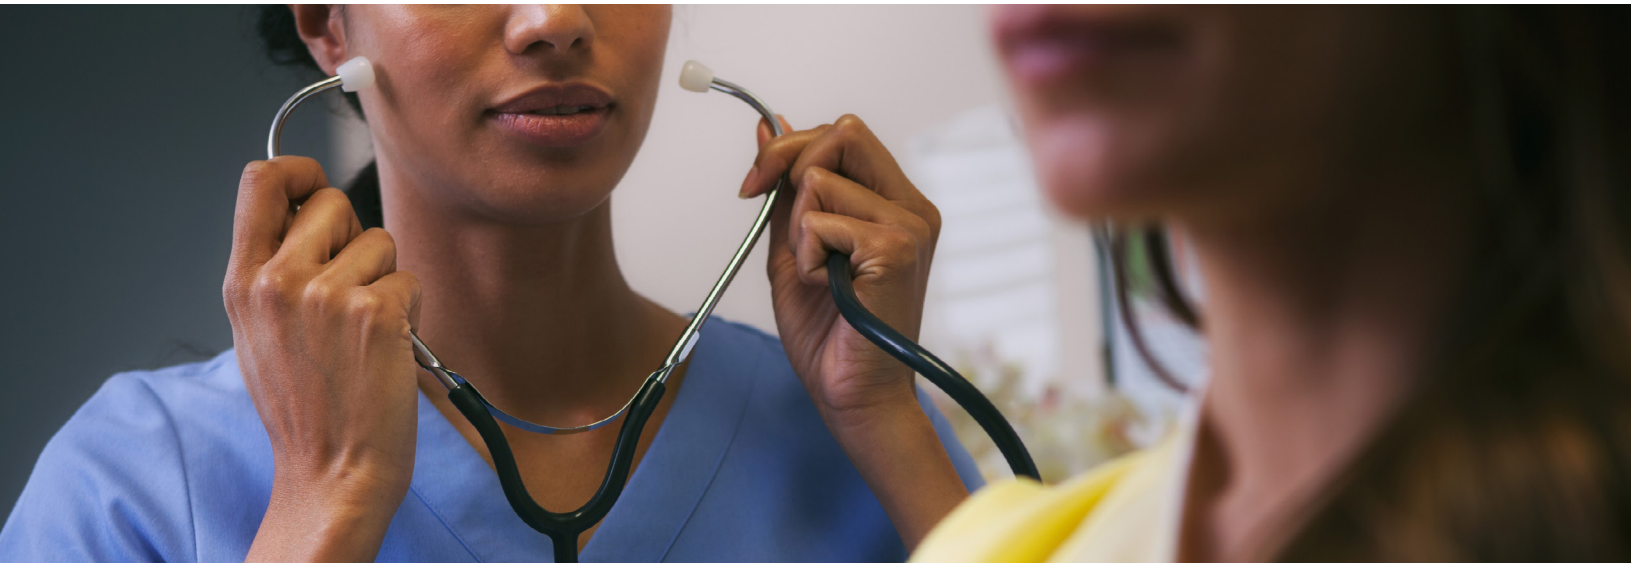

in patients receiving medication abortion care at home via video appointments and pills mailed to their home. This enabled us to increase service for some of our most rural counties (Coos, Klamath, Malheur, Union, etc.).

Doubled OHSU's clinical visit capacity to serve individuals needing reproductive health care.

Partnered with Planned Parenthood and the Lilith Clinic to provide abortion services statewide and to serve individuals needing to travel to our state for care.

With more than 630 gifts, we have raised funds to support our three areas of focus: research, education and clinical care. Our work is nowhere near finished. We must continue to strengthen the infrastructure and support patients seeking care.

Philanthropy makes this possible.
